

Named Janus

Magazine Due In January

Janus, a literary magazine, was officially set up as a Rice publication at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday night. This magazine, carrying on in magazine form the tradition established by previous years' splendid Mill, will be a regular publication, with the frequency of issues depending on student response.

Balanced Fare

Janus will seek to present a balanced fare of fiction, poetry, satire, and features on aspects of Rice that cannot be adequately covered in a weekly newspaper. This outlet for literary talent on the campus will feature an article on the architecture department in its first issue, to be published in the middle of January.

The magazine will be sold at the rate of 25 cents per issue, or $1 for a year's subscription. The staff at present includes Joel Hochman, editor; Claire Plungian, associate editor; Honor Blanchard, William Corrington, Roy Roussel, Pat Jones, Bob Warren, Trudy Haarman, Barry Moore, Karren Cowdin, and Steve Gosnell.

People desiring to submit material before the deadline of Monday, January 11, or who would like to help on the staff can call Joel Hochman at MA 3-7595 for further information.
